COLONIAL NOBILITY.

RECOGNISED BY THE IMPERIAL GOVERNMENT.

CANADA.

The undermentioned Feudal Barony is the only Canadian hereditary title existing. The Patent of Nobility signed by King Louis XIV. granting this title to Charles le Moyne for distinguished services, is remarkable as creating not only a Territorial Barony, but also conferring a title of honour upon himself and his descendants, whether male or female. The cession of Canada to England by the Treaty of Paris in 1763, made no change in the legal right to hold honours; since this period each successive head of the family has, by assumption of right, used the title; but it was not officially recognised by the British Government until December 4th, 1880.

*MALTA.

The Nobles of Malta take precedence among themselves according to the date of creation of Nobility, and irrespective of title. They are officially addressed as "Most Noble," while their eldest sons enjoy the courtesy title of Marchesino, Contino, or Baroncino, and the younger sons and daughters are styled dei Marchesi, dei Conti, or dei Baroni, according to the title which ennobles the family. Some of the titles are feudal, and devolve with certain estates by perpetual entail. The title is generally added to the surname. When Malta came under British protection, the Royal Commissioners, in the name of King George III. and his successors, promised that the laws, rights, and privileges of the Maltese should be maintained. The Reports of Commissions appointed to decide the claims recognised by the Imperial Government were presented to both Houses of Parliament by command of Her Majesty in May 1878 and August 1883.

This family is descended in a direct paternal line from Louis VIII., King of France. Charles, youngest son of this monarch, was called king of Jerusalem and Sicily, and his 2nd son, Louis, married Agnes, heiress of Beaumont, in France, whose sons took the name of Beaumont. Henry, the 4th son of Louis and Agnes, seated himself in England, and became Earl of Buchan, in Scotland. His son John, Lord Beaumont, married Eleanor, 5th daughter of Henry Plantagenet, Earl of Lancaster, grandson to King Henry III. On the death of William, Viscount Beaumont, the eldest branch became extinct. A younger branch settled at Cole Orton, temp. Edward IV., of which was Nicholas Beaumont, who died 1585, leaving, besides other issue, two sons : (1) Sir Henry, whose son, Sir Thomas, was created a baronet in 1619, and Viscount Beaumont, of Swords, Dublin, in 1622, which titles became extinct on the death of the 3rd viscount, in 1702 ; (2) Sir Thomas, of Stoughton, grandfather of Sir Thomas, the 1st baronet, from whom is descended the present baronet.

This ancient family derives its name from the town of Bellingham-in-Tyndale, co. Northumberland, where it appears to have been seated immediately after the conquest, and its descent to the present baronet is in direct male line, without any interruption, from Alan de Bellingham, who lived in time of William the Conqueror. Sir Henry Bellingham, of Bellingham, was made a knight banneret by Henry VI. after the battle of Wakefield; his son, Sir Roger, was made a Banneret after the battle of Stoke in 1487, and left an only son, Sir Robert, who died without male issue. Sir Edward, Gov. of Ireland 1548-9, whom Leland, in his History of Ireland, calls "a brave and experienced commander." He was servant of the Privy Chamber to Edward VI., who appointed him Lord Deputy of Ireland. Alan, of Helsington, a bencher of the Middle Temple, one of the King's Council at York, and M.P. for Northumberland 1570; his son, Sir James, was knighted by James I. in 1603, and died 1641, having married Agnes, da. of Sir Henry Curwen. His son, Sir Henry, created a baronet 1620, was M.P. or Westmoreland in all the Parliaments called by Charles I., and raised forces in the north for the royal cause; his son, Sir James, dying without issue, the title became extinct. Henry, 2nd son of Alan Bellingham, of Levens Hall, was an officer in a regiment of cavalry raised in the north for suppressing the rebellion in Ireland, and at the termination of that rebellion had lands granted him in co. Louth (which co. the Bellinghams represented 1660-1755), now called Castle Bellingham. These lands were confirmed by patent of King Charles II., and he added to them very considerably by purchase. He died 1676, having married Miss Sibthorpe, and by her had Anne, who married Robert Bickerton, of Armagh, brother of Jane, Duchess of Norfolk, and Thomas who raised a regiment of cavalry and served as its Col. with King William in Ireland, where he acted as his guide during the march of the army from Dundalk to the Boyne, served in that action, and after it accompanied the king to Duleek. For these proofs of attachment to King William, the army of King James, in their retreat towards the Boyne, destroyed Bellingham Castle by fire. His son Henry, M.P. for Dundalk, had a son Henry, M.P. for Louth, and a daughter, Elizabeth, who married Rev. John Fortescue, uncle of the last Earl of Clermont. Alan, youngest son of Henry, married Alice, daughter and co-heiress of Rev. H. Montgomery, of Grey Abbey, co. Down, and had issue, Henry, leaving issue male which became extinct in 1822, on the death of his grandson, William Henry, an officer in the 6th Regt. Sir William, the 4th son, created a baronet in 1796, with remainder to the heirs male of his deceased father, was M.P. for Reigate, Sec. to Pitt, and a Commr. of the Navy, married Hester Frances, daughter of the Rev. the Hon. R. Cholmondeley, son of George, 3rd Earl Cholmondeley.

This family (concerning which there is no official pedigree recorded at the College of Arms) claims to be a branch of the Blounts of Sodington, who had seats at Eye and Stretton, Herefordshire. Sir John, 1st baronet, was the fourth child of Thomas Blunt, of Rochester, Kent, "shoemaker and baptist," and was baptized at St. Nicholas, Rochester, July 24th, 1665. Thomas, the shoemaker, was buried at St. Nicholas, Rochester, March 28th, 1703, his father having been John Blunt, of St. Sepulchre's, London, "upholder." In 1732 the Court of Chivalry summoned and fined the 1st Bt. for using without right the arms of Sir Charles Blount, Lord Mountjoy, Earl of Devon; he appealed from the sentence, and a day was appointed for hearing his appeal, but he died before any further proceedings took place, and his descendants have continued to use the arms. The 4th baronet sat as M.P. for Lewes (L) 1832-7.

The family of Boothby is descended from ancient Danish chiefs, settled and holding lands in Lincolnshire before the Norman invasion. A baronetcy was conferred, by letters patent in 1644, upon Henry Boothby, Esq., of Claytor Close; but, though it received the sign-manual of Charles I., it did not pass the seals, by reason of the confusion of the civil wars. At the Restoration the patent was renewed by Charles II., with the date of 1660, to William Boothby, Esq., of Broadlow Ash, Derbyshire. Ashbourne Hall, Derbyshire, the seat of the family for 200 years, was sold in 1846, in accordance with the will of the 9th baronet.

The annals of this old Staffordshire family extend to temp. Henry VI. Thomas Broughton, Esq., father of the 1st baronet, was fined £3,200 by the Sequestrators for his loyalty to Charles I. The 4th baronet assumed the additional name of Delves.

BROUN, Creation 1686, of Colstoun, Haddingtonshire.

This family claims descent from George Broun, who married, 15– Jean Hay, daughter of Lord Yester, ancestor of the Marquess of Tweeddale. The dowry of the lady consisted of the famous "Coulston Pear," which her remote ancestor, Hugo de Gifford, of Yester, a famous necromancer, who died 1267, was supposed to have invested with the extraordinary virtue of securing unfailing prosperity for the family who might possess it. This pear is still preserved at Colstoun, and even when shorn of its superstitious surroundings is, nevertheless, a wonderful vegetable curiosity. Sir George Broun, 2nd baronet, married Lady Elizabeth M'Kenzie, daughter of the 1st Earl of Cromarty, and it is reported that during the first night after her marriage when she slept at Colstoun, she dreamed she had eaten the pear. Her brother-in-law looked upon this as a bad omen, and expressed great fears that she would be an instrument to destroy the house of Colstoun. Be this as it may, Sir George sold the estates, and in 1718 was drowned with his family in the Tyne. The title is then said to have been held by the Thornydike branch of the family until the death of Alexander Broun in 1775, and was not again assumed until revived in 1825 by James Broun (as 7th Bt.) after service of heirship in Scotland. The Baronetcy is now assumed by his grandson, WILLIAM BROUN, as 10th Baronet, son of the late William Broun, who also assumed the title, and d. 1882, having m. 1843, Elizabeth, who d. 1899, da. of the late John Smith, Esq., of Drongan, Ayrshire, but neither he nor his immediate predecessors have established a right to the dignity at the Heralds' College. BROWNE, Creation 1699, of London.

This Baronetcy has been assumed by CHARLES WILLIAM WOOLFE CLIFTON-BROWNE, claiming as great-great-grandson of the Very Rev. William Lawrence Browne, D.D., LL.D., Principal of Mareschal Coll., Aberdeen, and Dean of the Thistle and Chapel Royal, grandson of the Rev. Lawrence Browne, Min. of Linthrathen, stated to be second son of Sir William Browne, 1st baronet (a merchant of Dundee, London, and Danzic), but he has not established and recorded his right to the dignity at the Heralds' College. This branch of the family, however, did not assume the title on the death of the 3rd baronet, owing, it is said, to the supposition of an attainder (before his succession to the title) against the 3rd baronet, Sir John Browne, who fled to Poland after the battle of Culloden and after his espousal of the cause of Prince Charles Stuart, and died there, when the title was presumed to have become extinct, nothing being known regarding any relatives. In 1646 he was constituted a Lord of Session, with the title of Lord Durie, an office of which he was deprived by Cromwell. Of him it is related that while he was riding upon Leith Sands, a nobleman who was a suitor in the Scotch Courts caused him to be forcibly carried away to prevent his voting at the decision of the suit in the Court of Session. COCKBURN, Creation 1628.

James Cockburn of Ryslaw is stated to have been created a Baronet of Nova Scotia in 1628, but the patent is not on record, neither does the title appear in Mylne's list of Nova Scotia Baronetcies; on the other hand, a Sir James Cockburn of Ryslaw (who, however, may have been only a Knight) is recorded as having died in 1659, and his son—ancestor of Edward Cludde Cockburn (infra)—is also referred to in various official documents (Acta Parl. Scot. viii., 224, 464) as Sir James; while in Oct. 1653, King Charles II., being then at Chantilly, addressed a letter "To our trusted well-beloved Sir James Cockburn of Ryslaw, Knight Baronet of Nova Scotia," and in an Act of Convention dated 1678 mention is made (for the Shire of Berwickshire) of Sir Archibald Cockburn of Langton, Sir James Cockburn of that Ilk, and Sir James Cockburn of Ryslaw, but in 1671 he is simply described as "James Cockburn of Ryslaw" (Part. Reg. Sasines, County of Berwick, Vol. 2, fol. 330), and entered his arms in the Lyon Office about 1673 as Sir James, but without the style of Baronet. The title is assumed by EDWARD CLUDDE COCKBURN as 7th Baronet of Cockburn and Ryslaw, Berwickshire, but his right to the dignity has not been established and recorded.
